

Dear siblings in Christ,

Richest Christmastide blessings to all of you today, when we celebrate the birth of Jesus, the Light of the World.

At Queen's I was blessed to be able to study with an Anglican colleague who had been completely blind since the age of 10. His incredible dog, Zodiac, came to all the lectures. Of course we did wonder if, at ordination, Zodiac would receive a dog collar! (That's a cracker-type groaner for you!).

So we had to think very carefully how we preached about Jesus as light, how we thought about 'the people who walked in darkness'. I wonder how important candles, or other lights, have been to you this Advent? I've found myself thinking more and more this year about the beauty of a single flickering flame, and about how a small light may not seem to do much in the daytime, but how, when it's dark, that little light is more powerful and far-reaching. In other words, when we see those around us going through difficult times, even something small can make a huge impact. As we think again of a tiny baby in an animal's feeding trough, we are reminded of the truth of this.

There have been some wonderful light-filled experiences for me this Advent, as a new minister in the South Warwickshire Circuit. Seeing the Warwick Christmas lights switched on was brilliant, as people relished being out together again. Gathering for 'Carols by Carlight' with Graeme Russell was very special, as we sang carols with fairy lights in our cars. Being with a couple who are going through a very difficult time and having a whole discussion about Methodist attitudes to candles over the years was a huge privilege and blessing. And this also seems the right time to say a heartfelt thank you to everyone who has shone a light for me to find my way in these first few hectic-but-wonderful months.

Amidst the celebrations and festivities, Christmas Day is a day of mixed emotions for so many of us. Today, our thoughts and prayers go with everyone who is hurting. Let's not be afraid to give a small word of comfort, or a small deed of love – even if the situation seems overwhelming.

I'd like to share with you this beautiful reflection from Howard Thurman's The Mood of Christmas:

I Will Light Candles this Christmas

Candles of joy, despite all sadness,
Candles of hope where despair keeps watch.
Candles of courage for fears ever present,
Candles of peace for tempest-tossed days,
Candles of grace to ease heavy burdens,
Candles of love to inspire all my living,
Candles that will burn all the year long.

May you sense the wondrous presence of the God who is always with you, around you, behind and before, above and below, this Christmas, and every day. AMEN
